FEMALE STUDENT EDITORS

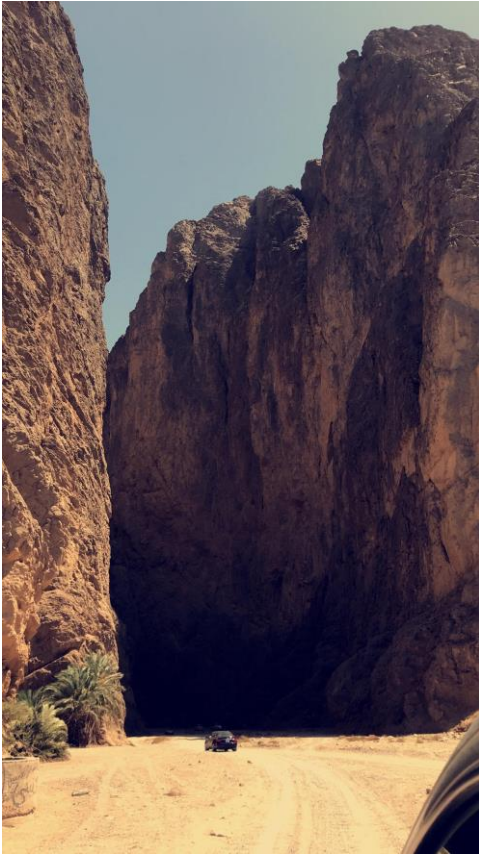

Message From the Editor- Dr. Tanveer Raza

Today we are proud to appoint three female students from the Faculty of Medicine, University of Tabuk as our colleagues in MedEdu Tabuk. Anyone

can write but not everyone is a writer. Being on the editorial board they will get the chance to improve their writing and editing skills. Our newsletter will benefit with a new perspective through their contributions. They will not only write but motivate others to express their views and share their knowledge in Medical education, teaching, science and research.

TOP COMPLAINTS POSTED ON DOC-RATING WEBSITES

Summarized by,

Dr. Yazan Khasawneh
Assistant Professor
Obstetrics & Gynaecology Department
Faculty of Medicine
University of Tabuk

Although medical expertise and quality of care may be central to the patient experience, they take a back seat when it comes to online reviews of physicians. Patients posting negative reviews on rating sites, such as Vitals, Rate MDs, and Yelp, are often more vocal about the "softer" side of medicine than they are about clinical matters. Their complaints can sully even the most polished reputation.

In April 2013, researchers at Denver-based Vanguard Communications analyzed 3617 online reviews of 300 internists and ob/gyns practicing in Austin, Denver, New York City, and San Diego who earned the lowest marks on Vitals, RateMDs, and Yelp. Slightly more than one half (53%) of the posts were negative.

Patients who posted negative reviews were 4 times more likely to complain about a healthcare provider's indifference, bedside manner, or customer service than about his or her medical skills
