Educating students with disabilities has been developing rapidly in recent times, and there is a noticeable interest in providing the necessary support to students with disabilities at all stages of education. The issue of educating and rehabilitating people with disabilities represents a cultural challenge to nations and societies. Because it is primarily a humanitarian issue that hinders the progress of nations, given that people with disabilities represent no less than (10%) of the total population at the local and international levels, and these large numbers of people with disabilities constitute an educational loss that threatens the national and global economy, and according to some announced statistics, The number of disabled people in the world is (600) million people, more than (80%) of whom are in developing countries. No matter how different the statistics are and how conflicting the numbers are, the biggest problem is the small number of people who receive services and care, as those who receive the services required in this field They represent only 9.1% of people with disabilities. The Disabilities Unit at the Deanship of Student Affairs at the University of Tabuk seeks to provide all services and assistance to students with disabilities, which include guidance and counseling, and identifying the problems they face, in order to provide services and devices that guarantee them an appropriate social and educational environment.
